

Chapter 10 Bound and Constraint Properties

1. A bound property or a constraint property does not use a special data type for declaration. For a bound property, you need to fire property change notification in the set method. For a constraint property, fire vetoable change notification.
2. PropertyChangeSupport does not implement PropertyChangeListener. The PropertyChangeSupport class provides build-in support for handling bound properties.